FISCAL YEAR 2016 CIVIL ASSET FORFEITURE REPORT

INTRODUCTION

Under D.C. Code §41-312, the Office of the Attorney General for the District of Columbia (OAG) must annually file with the Council of the District of Columbia and publish on its website, information regarding its civil asset forfeiture efforts. This report satisfies that requirement.

CIVIL FORFEITURE OVERVIEW

In 2015, the Civil Asset Forfeiture Amendment Act of 2014 (Act) was signed into law. The Act outlines the process the District of Columbia must follow to execute civil forfeitures against seized property and the process for citizens to contest forfeitures of their property. Under the Act, property subject to forfeiture may be seized by the District by judicial order or upon the District's determination that there is probable cause to believe that the property is subject to forfeiture. D.C. Code §§41-303(a)(1)-(2). The District must provide an owner whose property has been seized notice of its intent to commence forfeiture against the property. D.C. Code §41-304(a)(1)(A). A property owner may contest civil forfeiture by filing a claim with the District. D.C. Code §41-305(a). When filing a claim, the owner can also request an interim release of their property. Id. After receiving the owner's request for interim release, if the District seeks to retain possession of the property pending the outcome of the civil forfeiture trial, the District must file a request for a hearing in the Superior Court for the District of Columbia within five days of receiving the owner's request or within five days of the property being released by the prosecutor's office, whichever is later. D.C. Code §41-306(c)(3)(A). At the interim release hearing, if the court finds that the District provided the owner with the requisite notice, and that it met its burden in establishing the property is subject to forfeiture, the Act requires the court to consider whether any reasonable considerations exist, other than the retention of the owner's property, that would protect the District's interest in the property pending the outcome of the forfeiture trial. D.C. Code §41-306(f)(3)(A). If the court cannot identify any such considerations, the property remains with the District pending the civil forfeiture trial. D.C. Code §41-306(f)(3)(B). If the court determines that the District failed to meet its burden, it must order the release of the property to the owner, without conditions, pending the outcome of the civil forfeiture trial. D.C. Code §41-306(f)(2).

If the matter proceeds to a civil forfeiture trial, the District again has the burden of establishing that the property is forfeitable. At the trial, the District must prove that the property is subject to forfeiture by a preponderance of the evidence standard. D.C. Code §41-308(d)(1)(B). However, if the property is a motor vehicle or real property, the District’s burden of proof is elevated to the clear and convincing evidence standard. Id. Also, if the property is cash totaling one thousand dollars or less, the property is presumed not forfeitable; however, the District may rebut this presumption with clear and convincing evidence that the property is forfeitable. D.C. Code §41-308(d)(1)(C). Further, if the property is the primary residence of the owner, the Act requires that the District prove the owner was convicted of the crime giving rise to the forfeiture. D.C. Code §41-308(d)(4). If the District is successful in meeting its burden, the seized property is deemed forfeited and may be sold, with the proceeds of the sale deposited into the District’s General Fund. D.C. Code §41-310(a). If the District fails to meet its burden, the District’s interest in the property is terminated, and the property is returned to the owner. D.C. Code §41-308(h).
